Good Evening!

This one heating up within the ragtag national GOP as the more moderates, such as Nixon, Scott, Scranton and Rockefeller go after the scalps of the ultra-conservatives as represented by Goldwater, Burch and their little coterie of Far West hangers-on.

It should continue quite a hassle for some time, especially in view of the reported surplus of $1,200,000 in the GOP treasury which for all intents and purposes Chairman Burch and his faction control. It'll be interesting to note how well money talks.

And we see where two cells of the John Birch Society have been uncovered in the Philadelphia police department. In view of the fact that the Birchers are a semi-secret outfit committed to extremism of the worst sort, we trust Mayor Tate will lose no time cleaning up the department.

You remember, of course, that the Democratic National Platform specifically condemned tactics of the Birch Society along with those of the Communist Party and the insidious Ku Klux Klan. Too bad the GOP didn't take a real stand on the Birchers and the KKK.

All right, the $150,000 Washington, D.C., International at Laurel this afternoon has long since captured the fancy of the hosy set with the wise folks stringing along with Kelso and Gun Bow, the overwhelming favorites.

Just to prove how easy it is to win at the race track, we're going to suggest that Italy's Veronese will no doubt capture the jackpot by a nose.

Both Cassius Clay and Sonny Liston and their camps trying to whip up a storm over the heavyweight title rematch at Boston next Monday, but as yet the gales haven't started blowing.

Does anyone think for a moment Liston won't win this one? There's that third try for the brass ring to be considered.

Okay, a more pleasant thought: That colorful, distinctive annual Charity Ball for the benefit of the Lower Bucks County Hospital Saturday evening, December 5, at Cherry Hill Inn. A truly worthwhile affair commending itself to everyone's interest and support.

Rohm & Haas Strike

Hopes Brighter For Settlement

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Contract negotiations in the two-week-old Rohm & Haas Co. strike continued today after yesterday's session produced some progress.

At the plastics and chemical plant in Bristol Township, 1,500 workers entered the 14th day of their strike for increased hourly wages and an 18-month contract.

Bristol Township police reported continued quiet on the

Jet Bomber

Crash Kills 7

WOLF POINT, Mont. (UPI)—A huge Air Force B52 jet bomber crashed and burned late Tuesday night on a pasture in rugged range country 20 miles south of this northeastern Montana town, killing all seven crewmen.

A spokesman at Glasgow Air Force Base said a recovery and investigation team sent to the scene confirmed that all aboard had perished.

The Giant eight-engine bomber, stationed at Larson Air Force base in Moses Lake, Wash., crashed and burned shortly after 11 p.m. in the pasture of the Clarence Chamberlain ranch seven miles west of the hamlet of Vida.

To Herald Christmas Season Starting Nov. 21

'Month Of Stars' Replaces Mill St. Parade

The Mill Street Businessmen's Association's annual parade, which in past years has heralded the Christmas shopping season will not be held this year.

The one-day event has been set aside in favor of a five-weekend celebration described by the Association as the biggest entertainment extravaganza in the history of the association and Mill Street, Bristol.

"Month of Stars," an entertainment program which will replace the annual parade will unfold between Nov. 21 and Dec. 19.

Opens Nov. 21

Don MacFarland, president of the association, announced the five weekend promotion will herald the beginning of the Christmas season on Saturday, Nov. 21 when Santa Claus arrives on Mill Street accompanied by picket lines at the plant's five gates.

Police had received complaints from non-striking workers that nails were on the road at two entrances to the plant. Police said the nails apparently had come from lumber which strikers used to build fires for keeping warm at night.

Contract talks resumed at noon today in the Philadelphia office of Federal Mediator Charles Workheiser. Union and management officials discussed a new contract for four hours yesterday before recessing until today.

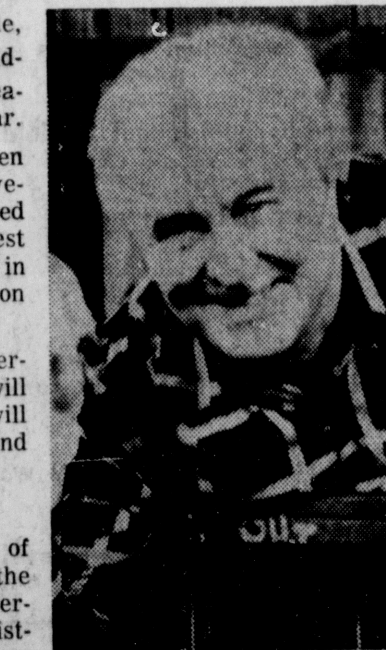

Victor Notarfrancesco, president of Local 88, United Glass and Ceramic Workers of North America, AFL-CIO, said no settlement was reached yesterday "but we're working toward it."

He expressed a bit of optimism that the strike would be ended soon. "The feeling was a little bit better yesterday" he stated.

No incidents were reported outside the plant yesterday. Shortly before 2 p.m. a vending machine truck entered the plant amid jeers and catcalls from about 35 pickets walking in front of the Pond St. gate.

Earlier, a truck approached the gate but turned away after apparently being persuaded by strikers to leave.

many Lower Bucks high school bands.

With Santa Claus will be the TV personality Sally Starr who will entertain the children with shows at 10:30 and 1:30. The high school bands will compete for trophies and prizes.

The following Saturday, Nov. 28, TV personality Sally Starr will appear, accompanied by Ray Sinclair and his clowns and trick dogs plus the Bill Bailey clowns. They will all perform at 10:30 and 1:30 and meet Mill Street shoppers between the shows.

Other Performers

On Saturday, Dec. 5, Chief Halftown will come to Mill Street to entertain the kiddies. With him will be one of the area's best known magicians, Jimmy Johnston who shares the spotlight with his dove cir-

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (UPI) — Communist guerrillas put bullet holes through two American mercy helicopters today and fired on dozens of others as U.S. pilots risked their lives to relieve one million victims in the worst storm disaster in South Viet Nam's history.

The two Marine Corps helicopters from this base got home with loads of Vietnamese refugees despite the bullets which failed to down their aircraft.

Farther south, the commander of a U.S. Army aviation battalion said "we are being shot at more than 50 per cent of the time by the V.C. (Viet Cong)."

An estimated 1,200 persons were reported drowned in only two of this county's northern provinces. Estimates of homeless in only four provinces ranged from 850,000 to 1,200,000.

Communications Cut

There were no reports at all from some provinces, where radio, road, railway, air, river and sea communications were all put out of commission.

Air Force weather men in Saigon, meanwhile, warned that several more days of wind and rain was predictable along the 200-mile stretch of storm-ravaged coast.

The Marines here airlifted 800 refugees to safety in the past 48 hours, despite the gauntlet of Communist gunfire.

The commander of the U. S. Army's 52nd Aviation Battalion, farther south, radioed his superiors that the situation was so desperate that only the sick and wounded were being evacuated by air.

American military reports to the capital city said 1,100 persons had drowned in two districts of Quang Tin Province alone. Another 120 died in Quang Nam Province.

Million Homeless

The senior American aid official in the region, Louis Wahrumund, of Fredericksburg, Tex., told UPI here that 750,000 to one million were homeless in the three provinces. He said 80 per cent of all property had been destroyed.

Spokesman in Saigon said coastal districts in the three provinces were 85 to 90 per cent under water.

NEARBY STORES THREATENED

$20,000 Blaze Wrecks Bar

By SCOOP LEWIS
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Fire today gutted Tag's Pizzeria and Bar causing an estimated $20,000 damage, and threatening several stores and offices in the 5 Points Shopping Center, Levittown, before being brought under control.

Cause of the blaze, which broke out shortly before 8 a.m. has not been determined. Vincent Latronica, chief of Levittown Fire Co. No. 2, said it apparently started in the front of the bar. No stores in the center had opened when the fire was discovered.

State police, Bucks County and Bristol Township officials were called in to investigate the possibility of arson, Latronica stated.

Flames ripped through Tag's Bar, gutting the interior before firemen brought the blaze under control within 20 minutes. The bar's dining area and booths were extensively charred by the flames and smoke.

The bar operated by Al and Anthony Tenaglia since 1959, is situated in the middle of the 5 Points Shopping Center. Adjacent stores and professional offices were threatened by the flames before three fire companies brought the blaze under control.

The fire was the second tavern blaze this week. Sunday night, flames caused an estimated $7,000 damage to Carber's Tavern on Route 1 and Flowers Mill Road, Levittown. Further damage may be realized since the building may have to be condemned.

Italo Fiori of 801 Delores Lane, Croydon Acres, discovered the blaze at 7:49 a.m. He was cleaning in the parking area of the shopping center at the time.

Rocket Trail Colors Sky

Nearly 100 Lower Bucks County skywatchers jammed the Courier Times switchboard early last evening to ask about the "red, blue and gold colors in the sky."

The switchboard's trunk lines were jammed for 16 minutes from 5:20 p.m. when the colors were first noticed.

The source of the colors was a Nike-Apache rocket launched from the deck of the Croatian, converted aircraft carrier, and a second Nike-Apache that blasted off from Wallops Island, Va., a few minutes later.

The rocket shot from the Croatian, at sea about 75 miles southeast of Wallops Island, released a pink sodium vapor cloud 123 miles above the earth's surface. The Wallops Island rocket released its vapor trail at the same altitude minutes later.

A National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman said the purpose of the two shots was to study high-altitude winds. Another double launching was planned for early today and again for this evening at 5:30 p.m.

Facial expressions ranged from awe to wonder at an enormous white owl spotted yesterday afternoon by students at M. R. Reiter School in Morrisville. The owl, estimated to be a foot tall, landed on the

Brought To School Playground By Retarded Boy

Grenade Injures 34 German Children

HANAU, Germany (UPI) — A hand grenade brought to school by a feeble-minded boy exploded in a crowded playground today, injuring at least 34 children.

The grenade exploded among 450 children playing during a recess. It tore the arm of an 8-year-old boy, ripped off a girl's hand, mangled the leg of another girl, and may cost another her sight.

The parents of 11-year-old Rudolf Pospiech, who found the grenade and smuggled it into school told reporters he was "feeble-minded" and could not have known what he was doing.

"He can't have known what the thing was," the boy's father said. "He's mentally retarded."

Rudolf told classmates he found the grenade on the way to class at the 540-pupil Tuempelgarten Elementary School at Hanau, 18 miles east of Frankfurt, police said.

Rudolf lost a part of one hand and may lose an eye, his father said.

The grenade apparently was German-made. German and U. S. military police who questioned uninjured children said they told of the 11-year-old proudly displaying the grenade in morning classes and the yard play recess.

"He was showing off with it all morning," one girl said. "He said he found it on the way to school."

Another child said the boy, whose name was withheld, told near the U. S. Army's Huiter, Francois, and Hessen-Homburg man housing construction area camps.

Granny Flies To Soothe Baby

HALLANDALE, Fla. (UPI)—Mrs. Eileen Conroy, a grandmother who flew the Atlantic to soothe a crying baby, decided today America is sending new mothers home from the hospital too soon.

"In England they keep mothers in the hospital for 10 days and give them all sorts of training in caring for a baby," Mrs. Conroy said.

She arrived here Monday from England after summoned by a phone call from her son-in-law who said "Diane needs you. Can you come? She needs help with our baby."

Diane Davies, he explained, couldn't get 12-day-old John Davies to stop crying.

Lower Bucks Veterans Fight New Battle Of The Bulge

Ever meet anybody you haven't seen for years and think, to yourself, "Boy, he got old and heavy," while you, of course, haven't changed at all.

Brother — that's what you think.

An awesome reminder of that fallacy comes to light today, Veterans Day, as a lot of us servicemen take a nostalgic peak into the storage closet and try to get into our old uniform. Only it doesn't fit.

First thoughts of course, are that time and dampness have shrunk the old outfit, but an honest appraisal of our reflections in the mirror tells us different.

Some of us may even wonder how we ever fitted into those things — and if we did, how did we ever win the war looking like that.

But we did fit into them and we did win the war — only to be faced 19 years later with the battle of the bulge — our own, that is.

Some of us, of course, have just the opposite problem. Where once beneath that khaki or blue lay brawn and muscle — now there is just tired blood.

Happy Veterans Day.

Falls Seeks Joint Rt. 1 Sewer Job

The Falls Township Sewer and Water Authority may join Middletown's authority in a joint sewer project along Route 1.

The joint effort would call for the laying of sewer lines from Strick Trailer Co. to Oxford Valley Road in Falls and from Oxford Valley Road to the Old Star Airport in Middletown.

A meeting of the two authorities will be held shortly to finalize the agreement.

Mike Fabian, chairman of the Falls authority, announced that an engineering survey of the Falls portion will be completed by January, and the bid date set at the January authority meeting. Falls will proceed with its project even if negotiations for Army veteran Edward Boehmer of 3752 Mechanicsville Road, Cornwells Heights, finds a little added girth in the waistline as he tries on his uniform trousers.

Seek Sex Sadist In Brooklyn

NEW YORK (UPI) — Police reinforcements, including women detectives, searched today for a sex sadist who assaulted seven women in as many weeks in a fearful Brooklyn neighborhood.

Authorities were certain the series of attacks, the latest Monday night, were committed by the same man. They looked for a slim, nattily dressed Negro with pencil-thin mustache.

At least 25 suspects were questioned Tuesday as police sought to apprehend the rapist who has turned the Crown Heights area into a place of terror for the second time in several months. Last summer a wave of violent crime erupted in the area, climaxed by the rape-slaying of a school teacher.

LBJ, Dillon Air Tax Cut

JOHNSON CITY, Tex. (UPI) — President Johnson called Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon to his LBJ Ranch today for talks on economic matters, including plans for a reduction in excise taxes in 1965.

This program, a step toward another promised cut in personal and corporate income taxes, was among items on the agenda following Dillon's arrival at the ranch.

Commerce Secretary Luther H. Hodges was scheduled to fly to the ranch later in the day for a meeting with Johnson on a broad range of topics — from exports to civil rights.

Cotugno Brings Complaint Equity Suit Filed In GOP Squabble

A squabble over the leadership of the Bristol Township Republican Organization has landed in Bucks County Court.

Party vice chairman Chaser J. Cotugno yesterday brought an equity suit for an injunction against Leroy D. Evans, maintaining that Evans' election as chairman on Oct. 26 was illegal.

Cotugno said that the party by-laws provide that he, the vice chairman, succeed to the chairmanship vacated by Harry Mann on Oct. 15. Both Mann and Cotugno took office on Jan. 8, the complaint says.

President Judge Edward G. Biester gave Evans two days to answer the complaint.

Cotugno charges that on Oct. 26 Evans called a meeting at the Cavalier Lounge where he is alleged to have been elected "by acclamation by an undisclosed number of persons present."

Evans has called another meeting for tonight at the Newportville Fire House, the complaint states, and Cotugno asks that Evans be enjoined from taking any further action.

Evans is Bucks County Prothonotary and the request for the preliminary injunction was filed in his office in Doylestown.

W. DiNunzio Dies At 51

William DiNunzio, husband of Lottie DiNunzio of Pineway Farms, Langhorne, died suddenly yesterday at Lower Bucks County Hospital. He was 51.

Mr. DiNunzio was the proprietor of the Pineway Farms School of Horsemanship. He inaugurated a harness racing program renewing that sport at the Pineway Track which at one time was known as Village Farms and was the center of harness racing in the area. He also inaugurated a harness racing clinic for women.

Besides his wife he is survived by a son, Frank DiNunzio, West Bristol; two sisters, Mrs. Samuel Mignoni and Mrs. Samuel Champer, both of Bristol; and two brothers, Nicholas DiNunzio, Philadelphia; and Dominic DiNunzio, New York.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed. They will be announced later by the Galzerano Funeral Home, 430 Radcliffe St., Bristol.

The law firm of Curtin and Heefner has purchased the former Morrisville Community Center in order to have more space.

Congressman Willard S. Curtin said the firm will not move for several months and renovations on the community center will be made. The firm will leave its present offices at 101 N. Pennsylvania Ave. when it makes the move.

Fuss In Falls Solicitor Remiss? Two Can't Agree

By AL CHESTER
Courier-Times Staff Writer

Two Falls Township supervisors collided last night over whether the township solicitor, Samuel Snipes, was remiss in not giving certain legal opinions in writing.

Supervisor Walter Almond charged Snipes with being "tardy, if not remiss in the performance of (his) duty." Almond said he had written Snipes two letters in May, in which he asked Snipes for legal opinions on separate matters.

"Snipes has been remiss," Almond said.

To this charge Milton Berkes, chairman of the supervisors, replied: "I don't think Sam has been remiss."

Split Widening
"Yes he has!" Almond angrily returned.

Although the five-man board is all Democratic, a split has been widening between Berkes and Almond since the latter took office last January. Last night's outburst did nothing to heal the split.

Berkes said the delay was not Snipes' fault at all. He said the solicitor referred one of the matters—concerning the township pension program—to the life insurance company which handles it. "The life insurance company caused the delay," Berkes said.

Snipes said he answered the other matter verbally at a recent meeting that Almond had not attended.

Falls Supervisors Told:

Sunday Sales Survey Planned By Chamber

The Lower Bucks County Chamber of Commerce will soon survey its members to see if the chamber should seek repeal of the Sunday Blue Law.

This announcement, contained in a letter from Warren Likens, executive director of the chamber to Milton Berkes, chairman of the Falls supervisors, was made at last night's supervisors meeting.

Thanks Township

The main body of the letter thanked the township for its cooperation in ending a Blue Law violation by a new firm on Route 1, Falls Township. The chamber had notified District Attorney William Carlin and the Falls police of the one-day violation last September. Franklin Kirby, Falls chief of police, talked to the company and the violation ceased.

One-Day Institute

In other business last night, Berkes announced he would ask the Regional Cooperation Council to sponsor a one-day Institute on Local Government Responsibility in Racial and Community Tensions. The institute would be for all police officers in Lower Bucks.

Berkes said if the council turned down his suggestion, "then we could do it alone." He said his idea came after he attended such an institute in Hershey this week at the State Police Academy.

"This institute helped clear the air about the responsibility of local government in such situations," he said. "It's not far-fetched that some day we may have these problems. I'm hoping we can meet them in ways better than other towns have met them."

Lie Detector

Berkes also announced that Kirby, in reply to a letter from Middletown, has recommended that Falls not join Middletown in the joint purchase of a lie detector.

In other business, the board voted to request permission from the state highway department for a 15 - mile-per-hour flashing sign at the intersection of Makefield Road and Winding Way near the Eleanor Roosevelt School.

The action was taken as the result of the department's rejection of a request for a standard light. The department, in its refusal, said the traffic flow does not meet the established requirements for a regular light.

Bullen Appointed

The board appointed Stephen J. Bullen, deputy director of Falls Township Civil Defense, as shelter official, replacing Larry Bernhardt who resigned, and moved to explore the cost of installing an electronic traffic control system that changes lights automatically to permit passage of fire equipment.

Producers Letter

Berkes produced the letter from the insurance company and read the contents. They answered points which Almond raised in one of his letters to Snipes. In that letter, Almond said two township employees had refused to participate in the pension program. He said they were John Banko, building inspector, and Fred Newcomb, a township laborer.

The main points were whether the pension program was mandatory, and if it was, whether the employees could be discharged for failure to join. Berkes said the answer to both questions was "no."

"Touchy Question"

The other inquiry concerned what action could be taken against a property owner whose plantings on the corner interfered with traffic "line of sight."

The property owners, Mr. and Mrs. Young, live at the intersection of Nightingale Lane and North Park Drive, Levittown.

Berkes said it was "a touchy question for several years. In the past we found we have no legal responsibility to move or cut the trees without the owners' permission."

Snipes said he was still investigating, but believed the township or any property owner could take court action to remove the trees based on a "restrictive covenant" provision in the township code.

A Courier-Times Correspondent in Butte, Mont., reports that Rabbi Gerald Kaplan, former spiritual director of the Bristol Jewish Center, is the proud owner of an autographed photo of President Johnson.

Rabbi Kaplan was one of the dignitaries on the platform when the President spoke in Butte on Oct. 12 and in the midst of all the handshaking, he asked the President for a photo. The photo, inscribed "To Rabbi Gerald Kaplan - with best wishes - Lyndon Baines Johnson" arrived on Oct. 26.

Rabbi Kaplan is now with Congregation Bnai Israel in Butte.

Neshaminy High School students who decorated William Penn's statue Monday night did so with the approval of Lower Makefield police, it was learned today. As reported in the Courier-Times yesterday the decorating also drew Pennsylvania High's approval.

Neshaminy youngsters invaded the campus of Pennsylvania High School and set to work giving Penn a pumpkin head. Along came Lower Makefield police in a patrol car. They stopped, talked to the youngsters, and were assured it was all good fun with no vandalism.

Leaving a police dog to watch over the goings-on, the police checked with headquarters and got an O.K. to let the Neshaminy youngsters continue.

The late-night decoration was a reminder about Saturday's big game — as if Pennsbury needed a reminder.

Many veterans are reminiscing on Veteran's Day today.

One Levittown veteran, Bernie Kuklis, 429 Holly Drive, is still receiving treatment for an injury to his right arm in 1952. In an attempt to save a friend of his who had fallen down the hatch of a cargo ship of the coast of Inchon, Korea, he also lost his footing and fell down the 40-foot hatch himself and was hospitalized for one and a half years. His friend who was later rescued, was hospitalized for three days. Bernie has received over 200 therapeutic treatments for arthritis due to a direct trauma.

Power Fight Poses USW Problem

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The 1.2 million-member United Steelworkers union (USW), third largest in the nation, found itself impaled today on the horns of a curious dilemma.

How can its top leadership issue demands on the steel industry for negotiating a new wage contract when that leadership may not be around after the contract talks start?

That was the burning question the union's 33-man international executive board wrestled with in daylong session Tuesday. But they could not find an immediate answer.

As was expected, when their meeting was over the executive board members announced they would summon the 170-member Wage Policy Committee to convene next month to decide formally on seeking a new labor contract in the basic steel industry. The wage policy group has the final say on contract matters.

No Stand Taken
But the executive board shied from any definitive stand on wage contract problems. It also leaned over backwards in trying to push into the background the power struggle under way in the union for control of the top leadership posts.

Drawn by the battle lines were USW President David J. McDonald, in office for 12 years, and Secretary-Treasurer I. W. Abel, who announced last week he would oppose McDonald for the union presidency in elections next February.

They sat side by side throughout Tuesday's executive board meeting.

Abel, 56, announced his slate when he announced his candidacy. It included Walter J. Burke of Milwaukee, director of USW District 32, for secretary-treasurer and Joseph P. Molony of Buffalo, director of District 4, for vice president.

Completes Slate
McDonald, 62, completed his slate Tuesday night, but he did not announce it himself. Al Whitehouse, for 22 years director of USW District 25 at Cincinnati, announced he would run for Abel's secretary-treasurer post "with McDonald's blessing."

Two weeks ago, when McDonald announced for re-election, he gave as his slate the current incumbents — Abel for secretary-treasurer and Howard Hague for vice president. Hague still is on his slate.

Whitehouse, 59, said he is running for office with McDonald's approval. His district embraces 19 counties in southern and southwestern Ohio and eight counties in northern Kentucky.

At the end of its daylong meeting Tuesday the Union's executive board announced it was taking two steps toward reopening of the contracts in the basic steel industry.

It summoned the wage policy group to meet next month. The time and place will be set later, but the board said it would be about Dec. 1.

To Call Meeting

The board also said that McDonald will call a meeting for sometime next week of the local union representatives from the 11 major basic steel producing companies to obtain from them their views as to "the problems we face and the priorities which the union must give to the different needs of our members."

It is the custom for the executive board to make proposals and recommendations to the Wage Policy Committee, and for the latter to issue formal notice to the 11 major steel companies on contract reopening.

Under the current industry-union labor contract, the USW can reopen the contract Jan. 1 and strike 120 days later — on May 1 — if agreement is not reached on a new contract.

The union elections take place Feb. 9, thus presenting both union and industry with a vexing problem—what stand to take between Jan. 1 and the outcome of the union elections?

Dr. Hayman To Head Catholic Charities Appeal In Bucks

Dr. H. Blake Hayman, Levittown obstetrician and gynecologist, has been appointed chairman of the Bucks County Catholic Charities Appeal, it was announced today by Archbishop John J. Krol.

Dr. Hayman's appointment was confirmed at an organization luncheon for the appeal in the Bristol Motor Inn.

Attending the meeting were these representatives of the Bucks County committee, who will serve with Dr. Hayman; Edward J. McGinley Jr., chairman of the Archbishop's committee of the laity and president of the Beneficial Mutual Savings Bank, Philadelphia; Rt. Rev. Msgr. John L. Sefton, executive director of the appeal, and Thomas M.

Flatley, executive secretary of the appeal.

Flatley Vice Chairman
Frank Flatley of Bristol, president of the Bucks County AFL-CIO Council, was named vice chairman.

The appointment of Dr. Hayman and the organization of the committee marked the first time in the eight-history of the appeal that there will be a formal group of laymen in Bucks County who will solicit corporate gifts from business and industry.

Dr. Hayman is a graduate of LaSalle College, which honored him this year for his contributions to medicine and also for his outstanding personal charity toward his fellow men. He received an honorary Doctor of Laws degree at the June Commencement.

On Lower Bucks Staff

He was graduated from Jefferson Medical College and also served a residency in obstetrics and gynecology at that institution. After leaving Jefferson, he served a residency in the same specialty at McGill University in Montreal, Canada. He is on the staff of the Lower Bucks County Hospital.

A member of the Bucks

County and New Jersey Medical Societies, Dr. Hayman is also a fellow of the International College of Surgeons, a diplomat of the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology, and a member of the American Society of Abdominal Surgeons. He was a captain in the U. S. Air Force Medical Corp.

51 Agencies

The Catholic Charities Appeal supports the 57 institutions and agencies of the Catholic Social Services in the five counties of the Philadelphia Archdiocese. Funds from the appeal are also used for the construction of new institutions and the renovation of existing buildings. In the past few years, six new institutions, caring for the mentally retarded, deaf children, unwed mothers, the aged, and persons recuperating from illnesses, have been constructed. Funds from the 1964 appeal were used to build a new gymnasium - auditorium and machine shops at St. Francis Vocational School for dependent boys in Eddington. The cost for this construction was about $750,000.

Sister Bernadette Joseph, M.S.B.T., is the supervisor of the Bucks County Catholic Social Services office at 244 Radcliffe St., Bristol. She is assisted by Miss Ann McCabe, a social worker, and Mrs. Dolores Doyle of Levittown.

Dr. H. Blake Hayman (second from right) of Levittown, chairman of the newly formed Bucks County Committee of the Catholic Charities Appeal, points to the area in the county where his committee will begin working. Holding the map is Edward J. McGinley, general chairman of the appeal and president

Retarded Children's Assn. To Open U. Bucks Workshop

The third adult sheltered workshop in Bucks County for retarded children and adults will be housed in the old elementary school at 120 E. Church St., Sellersville.

Rev. Peter P. Polloni, executive director of the Bucks County Retarded Children's Association, announced today that open house at the school will be held on Saturday, Nov. 21 from 2 to 5 p.m.

New Facility

Rev. Polloni said the building will serve as a new facility for the Retarded Children's Association in Upper Bucks. Pre-school groups are already moving in, he reported.

Much of the work in securing the school building has been done by the Pennridge Jaycees, which has taken the work as its 1965 project. Under the supervision of Bob Spaninger, Ray Williams and James Hoover and others on the committee, the heating system has been converted into oil. Many other improvements are planned.

One Of 31

The Bucks County Retarded Children's Association is one of the 31 services that participate in the Bucks County United Fund Campaign. The allocation by UF to Retarded Children for 1964 was $17,500. An increased amount will be requested from UF for 1965 to help in the operation of this new workshop.

The county commissioners have proclaimed Nov. 15-21 in observance of National Retarded Children's Week.

The school building, Rev. Pol-lioni said, contains three rooms on each of two levels.

He invited the public to attend open house, which will feature a display of workshop work, refreshments and a program.

Headquarters for the Retarded Children's Association is in Doylestown at 20 W. Oakland Ave. The workshop in Lower Bucks is at 910 Mansion St., Bristol.

State Repays $37,854,000

HARRISBURG (UPI)—Pennsylvania today repaid another $37,854,000 of the near $200 million it borrowed from the federal government several years ago to keep the state Unemployment Compensation Fund solvent.

The payment reduces the amount the state still must repay the federal government to $139.2 million. The Commonwealth made a $25 million payment last year.

The state received $80 million from federal sources to finance the 15-week extension of unemployment compensation payments in 1958 and 1959. A year later it borrowed another $112 million when the Unemployment Compensation Fund neared insolvency.

The repayment is a paper transaction, coming from the $254,784,405 reported in the Unemployment Compensation Fund as of last weekend. Unless the loans are repaid according to schedule, the federal government could automatically cause an increase in the percentage of their payrolls the state's employers contribute to the Unemployment Compensation Fund.

WHY ROHM AND HAAS WANTS THE UNION ON STRIKE

1. The R & H Company realized the changes it made in working conditions, schedules, interpretations of the contract, policies and practices that were in effect for a decade or more created rising resentment among the members of Local 88 over the past few years. As far as the Union is concerned this follows the philosophy of the National Association of Manufacturers in their overall attempts to break unions.

This is why the Rohm and Haas Co. wants you on strike.

2. The R & H Co. thinks this is the time of the year to let you go on strike believing you will be weak because of the approaching holidays. This is why Rohm and Haas wants you on strike.
3. The R & H Company believes after you have released some steam you will be begging to go back to work on their terms. Big Daddy Rohm and Haas will have punished his little boys. This is why Rohm and Haas wants you on strike.
4. The Company has delayed and stalled on every attempt by the Union to meet and conclude negotiations stating they need more time to study.

- Oct. 29, 1964 — The Company walked out of negotiations at 12:30 A.M. after the Union had moved on its position for the Company's action. This is the first indication the Rohm and Haas Co. wants you on strike.

- Sun., Nov. 1, 1964 — with Federal Mediation. More time to study. No action in one week.
- Fri. Nov. 6, 1964 — with Bristol Twp. Commissioners and State Reps. Company wanted to postpone meeting till Mon., Nov. 9, 1964. Union ready to meet immediately. Company would not meet till Sunday, Nov. 8, 1964.
- Nov. 8, 1964 — Company stalled, State Mediator Feehan requested by Union. Company still no movement, say they would be ready Monday, Nov. 9, 1964.
- Nov. 9, 1964 — Company preoccupied with other matters. Willing to meet with Federal Mediation and Union Tues., Nov. 10, 1964.

This is why they keep the Union on strike.

5. The Company indicated little concern that an incident occurred in which a member of the Union and a police officer were injured. The Company wants these things to happen. The Rohm and Haas Company wants you on strike.
6. The Rohm and Haas Company gave its Knoxville Plant a 3½% increase in January 1964. Since January 1964 the Company's net income has increased $7,000,000 over 1963. And their net sales are $243,101,000 for 9 months of 1964 as against $221,724,000 for 9 months of 1963 or $21,377,000 for 9 months of 1964 as against last year of 1963. In addition rises in cost of living have taken place since January 1964. The Company has offered 8c to Bristol Employees or 3% which amounts to the same thing. The Company is deliberately stalling and withholding an equitable offer to settle the negotiations.

This is why the Rohm and Haas Co. wants you on strike.

From The TV Notebook:

Joe Satisfied With His Own Nose

By JOAN CROSBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK (NEA) — When Joe Campanella began acting, his friends suggested that he get his nose straightened and his teeth capped.

"But I never figured I would be a leading man, so I ignored the advice," he said. "Who wants a character actor with a fixed nose?"

But leading men with perfect features, characterless faces, and those storybook names are no longer as popular as they once were. Rugged, attractive Campanella - types have come into their own.

Joe's own is the role of Dr. Ted Steffen on CBS-TV's The Doctors and The Nurses.

Prior to joining the series, the New Yorker had wide television and Broadway experience in a variety of roles, things he says "a pretty face couldn't do."

He played a Madison Avenue executive in East Side - West Side, a Spanish - American in The Eleventh Hour, an Israeli in Espionage, a dude on The Virginian, a lawyer on The Lieutenant and a lieutenant on Combat.

On Broadway, he appeared in support of Henry Fonda in "A Gift of Time," and turned in a performance that brought him a Tony nomination.

Joe, the youngest of three brothers who grew up in what he calls "dignified poverty," began his acting career as a stunt man. "I didn't do the tough stunts, for those they would call in a professional stunt man. I did easy stunts the leading men couldn't manage." He ran the route of bit parts, stock, better parts and leads.

Most of his early roles cast him as foreigners, but not Italians. "I didn't get to play Italians until they discovered that all Italians aren't short and dark. Some of us are tall, blond and have blue eyes."

Campanella is married to the former Jill Bartholomew, a dancer he met when he was in the lead opposite Judy Holliday in the musical "Hot Spot," and Jill was in the chorus. They will become parents for the first time early next year.

for the first time early next year.

"Jill is the youngest of three sisters, all of whom are married," said Joe. "Her father says he never thought he would see the day when his daughters married an Irish golf pro, a Lebanese lawyer and an Italian actor."

Harry Guardino is an offbeat leading man who is playing the toughest role in television. As The Reporter, in the CBS-TV series, he comes under constant scrutiny from newspaper reporters who are inclined to report at scenes involving a kindly, but indecisive city editor, and a reporter who never seems to get to his typewriter to write.

Guardino, when asked why he accepted a series, replied, "Money. I had turned down many, because the money wasn't right and the scripts weren't right. This one came along with a script that was right, and money that was definitely right."

A moody, good-looking man with a reputation as a thorough performer, Guardino has found there isn't time to build a character in the haste of television production.

"I find the only way to act in television is to work off your own resources rather than delve into the reasons why I am doing whatever I am doing. I only ask for reasonable continuity in the writing. I really have no idea what Danny Taylor, the role I play, is like. I like to see a character happen. Each script has him in a different situation, so he can run a gamut in each show. I like to see emotions happen during the moment at hand, which is the way we live life."

Harry is bothered by some of the small annoyances of television. "I'm very explosive, and I stay mad for three minutes. Then I forget it. "But," he added significantly, "I explode when I have to."

On Public Water, Sewers

County Unit Seeks Subdivision Rules

Nathan Putchat, executive director of the Bucks County Water and Sewer Authority, told the Bucks County Planning Commission at a recent meeting that "the factors relating to water, sewerage and storm drainage are just as important as traffic and other considerations in weighing the merits of a subdivision plan."

Putchat spoke to the planners on the progress of his authority. Citing a report by Thomas Ford, chief of the environmental development section, sanitation division, of the State Health Department, that nearly one half the land in the state is poorly drained and not suitable for septic tank disposal fields, Putchat said he would expect Bucks County soil surveys to indicate that 75 per cent of the land is unsuitable for on-lot systems.

Urges Provisions

He urged the planning commission to require specific provisions for public water and sewers in plans submitted for approval.

Putchat said the "package" sewage treatment plants being installed in some housing subdivisions "do not incorporate efficient and sensible planning in accordance with ultimate sanitary facility requirements."

When package plants are used, he said, the builder should be required to dedicate them to the local or county government or authority to operate.

He told the planning commission of sections of Buckingham and Solebury Townships where the earth is of a "cavernous limestone formation."

Limestone Dissolves

"The limestone is soluble," he said. "Water erodes and dissolves it. As a result there is a series of underground reservoirs. If sewage from a septic tank gets into these reservoirs it will destroy one of the most valuable ground-water assets that exists in this county. You've got to have enough fortitude to tell developers. 'You can't develop here, regardless of lot size, without public sewage disposal facilities.'"

With reference to the county's Master Plan for Public Water Supply and Sewage Facilities, Putchat stressed the importance of regional planning. He mentioned the plans for the Ne-shaminy sewer interceptor system and discussions being held among municipalities in the Central Bucks area.

Franklin C. Wood, executive director of the planning commission, told the members his staff is working closely with Putchat, who has also visited many of the local planning commissions.

Uniform Codes

Charles R. Witmer, planning commission member urged the commission staff, in advising local planning commissions, to stress the advantages of uniform building codes among the various local governments.

A Marilyn Moyer Jr., chairman of the county planning commission, presided at the regular meeting. He announced that starting Wednesday, Dec. 2, the commission will revert to its previous meeting time of 2 p.m. For two months the meetings were held at 10:30 a.m.

Those attending, in addition to Moyer and Witmer, were Herbert Barness, vice chairman; Mrs. Elinore R. Ridge, secretary, and Robert G. Biehn, William F. Greenwalt and L. John Hutton.

The planning commission approved seven preliminary subdivision plans with a total of 68 lots and eight final subdivision plans, with a total of 105 lots.

The plans include a final plan for the 3.7-acre MacCord Tract in Upper Southampton Township.

A 20-year-old Lower Makefield man, arrested on a wife-beating charge, has confessed to a safe burglary in Morrisville and implicated another man, police said today.

Sgt. John Rice of Lower Makefield police identified the man as Stephen Olitsky of Stony Hill Road, a self-employed landscaper. He implicated another man in the burglary, Henry Binner, 33, of Stony Hill Road, both Lower Makefield, police said.

Lower Makefield police said Olitsky was arrested at 1:15 a.m. today at his home, after his wife, Margaret, charged he beat her and blackened her eye. Mrs. Olitsky filed charges of assault and battery with JP John Melvin of Falls Township. Rice said that during questioning early today, Olitsky confessed to breaking into the VFW Home in Morrisville last July. He said he and Binner got $440.

Police said the two admitted they removed the safe from the VFW Home on Hillcrest Ave., took it to Olitsky's home and broke it open. "where they took what they wanted," police said. The men then dumped the safe in a canal in Ewing, N.J., police said. As of this morning, the safe had not been recovered, and the case was turned over to Morrisville police.

Further Questioning
Binner, a U.S. Steel employee, was arrested at 6:30 a.m. today at his home and admitted his part in the crime, police said.

Both men are being charged with burglary, larceny and receiving stolen goods, as well as conspiracy, Rice said. Both were turned over to Morrisville police for further questioning.

Patrolman Peter Filipko assisted Rice on the case in Lower Makefield. Sgt. Stanley Naprawa of Morrisville police was in charge of the case in the borough.

Morrisville police said the two men were to be given a hearing before Justice of the Peace John Melvin in Falls Township this morning.

Bartender Reported
A story in the Courier-Times last July 30 states that a safe containing $517.40 was stolen from the VFW Post home at 101 Hillcrest Ave. on July 27.

Patrolman Joseph Cavanaugh said then the 125-pound safe was reported missing by a bartender, Grady Bolt of Morrisville.

Police said the safe was removed from behind the bar sometime between 12:30 a.m. and 8:30 a.m. July 27 when Bolt discovered it missing.

Entry was gained to the building by smashing two rear windows, police said.

Morrisville Council Raps PRR On Weeds

Members of Morrisville Borough Council last night rapped the Pennsylvania Railroad for alleged failures to properly clean up its property in the area.

Councilman Joseph Catania, who led the attack, charged, "They seem to think that just because they're the PRR, they don't have to do anything."

Catania said several letters had been written to the PRR requesting it to "clean up the mess" and to remove "junk from all over the place."

No Satisfaction Received
He said little or no satisfaction had ever been received from the railroad.

Catania cited three specific areas which are "unsightly" and need to be "cleaned up." They are the railroad tracks along S. Delmor Ave.; the new bridge across S. Pennsylvania Ave. and the uncut brush and weeds along the railroad tracks.

Already Wrote PRR
Robert H. Steward, borough manager, volunteered the information that he had just written the PRR three days ago. "I've already taken care of it," he said.

Michael Demech, council president, commented that four years ago council had had the same problem. "There has always been a mess along Delmor Ave.," he said. "The site down there is a mess."

Other councilmen also made comments on the matter, but they agreed to await the results of Steward's latest letter before any further action.

Grandview's Ditches Will Be Cleaned Out

Residents of Grandview Estates were informed last night at a Morrisville Borough Council meeting that help is on the way for their serious drainage problems.

Robert H. Steward, borough manager, told council that the FHA had informed him that contracts had been let to clean up Grandview's dirty ditches.

He said the FHA had informed him that the "work should start within a week."

Inspection Held
In addition, Councilman Joseph Catania informed the council that Congressman Willard S. Curtin and State Assemblyman Alan Williams had been contacted on the ditches.

He said both Curtin and Williams recently inspected the drainage ditches and "both have promised to seek federal aid to relieve the flooding conditions and possibly to have the ditches piped."

This action came as a result of complaints in recent months from members of Grandview Civic Association. A public hearing was held by council's water committee on Oct. 27, in which the full problem was explored.

Boro Set Aside Funds
Catania said the borough has also appropriated funds to go along with the FHA in cleaning out the ditches and in grading them.

In other action, the council—

Approved a resolution to file preliminary statements of interest to participate in Project 70 for land acquisition for park purposes in the borough in cooperation with the state-wide project.

Awarded a contract for a new 1965 Chevrolet police car to the lone bidder, Simpson Chevrolet of Morrisville, for $2,135, with delivery expected within 60 days.

Approved a motion making it legal for borough police to assist neighboring township and borough police when called upon. Although his has already been in practice, it was explained that the resolution was needed to make it formal and legal.

To Restrict Parking
Passed motions to restrict parking on the east side of Lincoln Ave. and the north side of W. Maple Ave. between Taft and Lincoln Aves.

Light Approved
Okayed a motion to install a 4,000 mercury light on pole 25500 on Francis Ave.

Adopted motions to pay both Union and Capitol View Fire Companies $1,000 each, the last of $9,000 budgeted for each one by the borough.

Approved a motion to pay the Morrisville Library $600 from the library fund, completing the total budgeted for 1964.
